Beauty and the Beast

Once there was a man who had three daughters. The youngest daughter was Beauty. She was good and kind. One day, the man had to go away.

"Should I bring back a present?" he said to his daughters.

"Bring me a necklace," said the first daughter.

"Bring me a gold ring," said the second daughter.

"Bring me a rose," said Beauty.

The man got lost. Then, he saw a castle. The castle had roses in the garden.

"I will pick some roses for beauty," said the man.

"Do not pick the roses!" said a loud voice. It was a Beast.

"Do not hurt me!" said the man. The Beast said,

"I will not hurt you. But you must bring me one of your daughters."

The man went home. Because Beauty was good and kind, she said,

"I will live with the Beast."

The Beast was kind to Beauty and Beauty liked him, too. One day, the Beast asked Beauty to marry him.

"I will marry you," said Beauty. Then, the beast turned into a handsome prince.

"Thank you for breaking the spell," he said.
